WEST GUWAHATI COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Report on

One-day Excursion to Rani Khamar

West Guwahati College of Education conducted a one-day excursion to Rani Khamar near the pristine Kushi River under the guidance of Mrityunjoy Das Gupta, Dipak Kalita and Ranjit Rabha. The trip to the destination started from the college gates with all the preparations being made the day before, ensuring a hassle-free journey. The journey was conducted upholding the SOP mandated by the government.

The preordained picnic spot where we boarded off our busses was quite well-maintained with provisions for all the necessities the people going for an outing would need. The place is kept immaculately clean and the natural beauty that the shores of the Kulsi River boast isn't diminished by an overabundance of signs of human activities.

We started our journey by 8:00 am and reached our destination at around 11:00 am. The journey itself was quite enjoyable as we travelled through places of great scenic beauty after we left the city for the outskirts of Meghalaya where the destination is located; besides, the energy of the crowd was quite invigorating. after reaching the destination we quickly set up our spot, fixed and unloaded the necessary stuff between the busses where we distributed and had our breakfast. Having done our breakfast, we were free to roam around the place, basking in the pleasures of the natural beauty of the place to the fullest extent. Quite a few of us dipped our toes into the cold and crystal-clear waters of the river on its shallow banks, a few of us took on the trek to visit the waterfall nearby and some of us took boat rides around the river as we marvelled at the beauty that its shores harbours, taking in the joys of being around undisturbed nature. Time seemed to flow rapidly like the waters of the river on whose banks we merrily spent our time.

We had our lunch right before we embarked on our journey back to our homes before sunset as it was mandated in the SOP which was around 3:00 pm. The journey back home was just as much energetic with everyone enjoying each other's company before we parted for the Bihu holidays. It was made sure that everyone safely reached their destinations after a tiring but enjoyable day, concluding the end of the one-day excursion organised by our esteemed college.
